October 23, 2018 Easy Statistical Tests YOU can do

Facilitator: Rob Kallmeyer, PhD, Associate Professor Arts & Sciences, The Christ College of Nursing and Health Sciences

Room: MSB 3352

Description:

- If you avoid conducting or discussing statistical research because it seems complicated, you're not alone. However, there are many simple statistical tests YOU can conduct, right in Excel. All you need is a step-by-step guide on what to click. This workshop will show you two of the simplest and most common tests to compare group differences, such as comparing pre/post test scores or comparing survey results between two samples. I'll guide you step-by-step through how to use this in your research, what to click in Excel, understanding the results, and creating a results statement and table for a peer-reviewed publication or presentation. Once you have data, you could have a results section completed in an afternoon, with time for a long lunch. This workshop is perfect for educational, behavioral science, and medical researchers who want to conduct, present, and understand statistical research.

Learning Objectives:

- 1) Learn about basic statistical tests useful in medical education
- 2) Conduct statistical tests in Excel
- 3) Create a results statement and table for a peer-reviewed publication or presentations
