Zinzinnati’s Oktoberfest

is this weekend!
Iron your best lederhosen, put some scrubs on and stretch so you are ready for the massive chicken dance, and prepare yourself for some amazing food and drink!!
Medical Grand Rounds on 8/30/2017 focused on troponin elevation in the critically ill. Dr. Rothenberg gave a phenomenal talk, after which you should be able to distinguish a Type II from Type I MI, as well as describe the relationship between severity of illness, cardiac troponin elevation and risk of mortality. You might even remember the role of beta-blockers, statins, and aspirin as potential treatments to reduce mortality risk.

If so, make sure this knowledge sticks by writing some Osmosis questions that will pop up again in a few weeks!

If not, check out the handout on Osmosis (dated 8/30/17) to review key learning points and write questions based on these!

MTP Dinner

When: Wednesday, 9/20 at 5:00 PM

Where: UH7104 (aka the Noon Report Room)

What: Come hear an interesting discussion led by Dr. Warm (who incidentally is this year’s International Residency Educator of the Year from the ICRE) on assessment.

As always, food provided!
Paracentesis Training

Has it been awhile since you’ve done a para? Well don’t worry, sim training is back! In trying to integrate training and periodic practice into your curriculum, we have started by conducting sessions while you rotate at the VA (shown below), and also just prior to or during your GI rotation (just-in-time training). Remember you can always access helpful training videos created by your APD Dr. Sall that use the same equipment you will find at UC. To access the videos, follow these easy instructions.

1. Go to canopy.uc.edu
2. Log in using your 6+2 username and your email password
3. On the right hand side of the screen under “My Organizations” click on Internal Medicine Residency
4. On the left hand side of the screen click “Content”
5. You should then see a folder called “Paracentesis Folder” where all of the material is located.

Paracentesis Assessment:
This tool should be used by ALL faculty to objectively assess competence and will eventually provide a way to show when you are able to perform the procedure unsupervised. These handouts are available in the GI workroom, Chief’s office, and Resident Lounge.

Congrats to Nikki Boschuettz who identified Hemophagocytic lymphohistiocytosis. The bone marrow smear below shows frequent hemophagocytic histiocytes, with both degenerated erythrocyes (arrow) and nucleated cells (arrowheads) within their cytoplasm. Erin Espinoza and Julie Gomez also answered correctly but were a few seconds behind!

Medical Trivia

The above emojis stand for a diagnostic tool. What is its name, the components, and the associated diagnosis?
