

Metformin for Overweight & Obese Children and Adolescents with Bipolar Spectrum Disorders Treated with Second-Generation Antipsychotics

Participants Needed!

- What: A study to determine if a lifestyle intervention or a lifestyle intervention plus metformin helps children and teens prevent or reverse weight gain caused by certain medications.
- Who: Children and teens ages 8-19 years who, who live at home and have a mood disorder, are overweight, and are currently taking a second-generation antipsychotic or may start taking them.
- Where: Visits take place in the patient's mental health clinic during their regularly scheduled appointments.
- Payment: Compensation up to $155 for patients and their caregivers may be available for time and travel.

Visit our website for contact information for participating sites:

www.MOBILITYStudy.org

or email mobilitystudy@uc.edu

This study is funded through a Patient Centered Outcomes Research Institute (PCORI) Award (PCS-1406-19276)